Maxie,

Thank you for updating us on your health condition. I'm copying to Dr. Yu so he is also aware of this situation.

That would be fine if you make up the hours that you owe us in the spring. Though, probably you owe us more than just finals week. Ms. Reikes and I will discuss to see how many hours we'll need for you to put in. You could help with some extra office hours before the midterm exams as well.

I hope that you will now be able to start healing, since you have a diagnosis. Please let us know if we can do anything to help, and please start feeling better soon!

Best,
Klara

Klara,

The stamps physician on the first floor confirms serotonin syndrome. It is very similar to a mild concussion. If you need to talk to the dean of students, or my advisor Josephine, feel free. In all honesty, this has been going on to varied degrees since March. It's not my fault. I am going to abstain from the Math lab this week. I owe you some hours next semester if you end up needing help with Math1552 around finals week.

Hi,

I am sorry you are not feeling well. I have taken you off the schedule for tomorrow. The last day of the Math Lab is Tuesday, December 7th.

Best,
Stephanie

Stephanie,

I missed my hours tonight. It was the last thing on my mind. Josephine brought me over to Emory in the middle of the time slot. I'm ok for now. They are trying to rule out serotonin syndrome with tests. Most likely, I will not be feeling up to the in person hours tomorrow either. Is this the last week of Math lab? I have had a hell semester...
